

One day I discovered that my mum also wrote her name in other people's hearts.

In Other People's Hearts

When Sammy found out that his mother had also left her name written in other people's hearts, he felt happy; he realised that he was not alone. He immediately started thinking about who those people were.

In whose hearts do you think your loved one also wrote their name? Can you draw a picture of them?

- How does it make you feel that these people also have your loved one's name written in their hearts?
- Do you feel accompanied and supported by them? How?
- What things can you do to help them, support them and accompany them as well?
